CHHAPTER- 1

INTRODUCTION AND OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY

INTRODUCTION

The present baseline study has been conducted for the project titled “Improving Child Protection and Rehabilitation of Children from Sexual Abuse and Exploitation in Bangladesh”, designed by the Save the Children and supported by the European Commission. The project is developed in line with United Nation’s Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (UNCAT) and United Nation’s Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) for ensuring child rights as well as for suppression of various forms of torture and ill-treatment against children in Bangladesh.

OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY

The objective of the project includes both prevention and rehabilitation measures to empower children as well as to address and approach the key duty bearers and by doing so to reduce the cases of sexual abuse and exploitation in the short and long term. The present baseline survey was required to provide a practical ground for effective implementation of the project. The report of this study is expected to be the knowledge base of the existing situation which will be the basis of implementation, selection of final target groups, monitoring, evaluation and tracking progress. Furthermore, this study was designed in order to obtain an overall understanding of the scope, magnitude, and nature of the sexual violation, torture and ill-treatment in the legal context of Bangladesh. The study was also aimed at equipping project personnel with information and strategic options to address the targeted issues. Therefore, the present baseline study involves the following objectives:

- i) Analysis of legal framework of torture, sexual abuse and exploitation in Bangladesh;
- ii) Critical appraisal of legal framework of torture, sexual abuse and exploitation in Bangladesh in the light of UNCAT and UNCRC;
- iii) To explore the strengths and loopholes of laws and policies of Bangladesh on child protection;
- iv) Focus on national obligations of Bangladesh under UNCAT and UNCRC;
- v) To compare the national laws with the standards with the provisions of UNCAT and UNCRC; and
- vi) To identify challenges in harmonization of national laws and policies with UNCAT and UNCRC.

CHAPTER- 2

METHODOLOGY

The study team consulted and reviewed primary and secondary sources in conducting the research. The primary sources for review included the international legal instruments; national substantive and procedural laws and policies applicable for rights of children and for their protection from torture, sexual abuse and exploitation, reported judgments etc. Review of the secondary sources includes reviewing reports, articles, seminar papers, books, journals and other literatures relating to research theme.

The study combined both doctrinal explorations with empirical investigation. While collecting empirical information attention was given both to top-down and bottom-up perspectives of the actors who are involved in implementation of existing laws and policies and the stakeholders.

In identifying the challenges of harmonizing national laws, policies, and strategy related to children with international instruments e.g. UNCAT and UNCRC, a few key informant interviews have been taken from the practitioners and judicial officers in this field.

Following the interviews data/information was collated, codified, and rigorously analyzed before putting them into the write-up skeleton. As to report writing, apart from portraying an overall existing national and international legal framework on child protection, the team used an analytical framework for compliance and gap analysis between national and international instruments. As a whole, to conduct the study the following methodological approach was followed:

Literature Review:

The study team first reviewed the core instruments i.e. the UNCAT and UNCRC with particular focus on torture and sexual abuse and exploitation. Thereafter inventories of national and international relevant legal and policy documents were prepared. In addition to the aforesaid documents the Study team reviewed the Initial Report and available Periodic reports of Bangladesh, which were submitted to the committee under the UNCRC as well as to concluding observations of the Child Rights Committee on the reports of Bangladesh. The team also studied many other previous research works on the issues relevant to this study.

Key Informant Interview (KII):

The study team has had some Key Informant Interviews of the stakeholders in the promotion and protection rights of children. The interviewees includes judicial officers, lawyers, prosecutors, personnel of law enforcement agencies, human rights activists, officers of different government bodies including National Human Rights Commission, Law Commission etc.

Data Collection (from primary and secondary sources):

The study team collected data both from primary and secondary sources. The team contacted with the Committee under the UNCAT to check with compliance of obligations of Bangladesh. The team contacted and visited offices of different ministries and government bodies including National Human Rights Commission, Ministry of Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs, Ministry of Foreign Affairs etc. The team also collected some relevant judgements from individual human rights lawyers. In addition to these the team collected data from different websites which are both primary and secondary sources depending on the hosting authority of these sites.

Limitation of the Research

The particular objective of this study was to explore national laws and policies. As a result, this study report may seem ‘too legal’ to the many. However, in identifying challenges in harmonization of national laws and policies with the provisions of UNCAT and UNCRC some political, economic, social, cultural, religious and institutional factors have been considered.

CHAPTER- 3

RIGHTS OF THE CHILDREN ENSHRINED IN UNCRC & UNCAT.

SHORT DESCRIPTIONS OF UNCAT

Background to the UN Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment: The Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (UN Convention against Torture) is an international human rights instrument under the review of the United Nations that aims to prevent torture around the world. The Convention requires states to take effective measures to prevent torture within their borders, and forbids states to transport people to any country where there is reason to believe they will be tortured. The text of the Convention was adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on 10 December 1984 and, following ratification by the 20th state party, it came into force on 26 June 1987. Therefore, the 26th June is now recognized as the International Day in Support of Torture Victims, in honour of the Convention.

Summary of the UN Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment: The Covenant follows the structure of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR), International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR), with a preamble and 33 articles, divided into three parts:

Part I (Articles 1–16):

Part I (Articles 1–16) defines torture (Article 1), and commits parties to taking effective measures to prevent any act of torture in any territory under their jurisdiction (Article 2). These include ensuring that torture is a criminal offense (Article 4), establishing jurisdiction over acts of torture committed by or against a party's citizens (Article 5), ensuring that torture is an extraditable offense (Article 8), and establishing universal jurisdiction to try cases of torture where an alleged torturer cannot be extradited (Article 5). Parties must promptly investigate any allegation of torture (Articles 12 and 13), and victims of torture must have an enforceable right to compensation (Article 14). Parties must also ban the use of evidence produced by torture in their courts (Article 15), and are barred from deporting, extraditing or refouling people where there are substantial grounds for believing that they will be tortured (Article 3). Parties are also obliged to prevent other acts of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, and to investigate any allegation of such treatment within their jurisdiction (Article 16).

Part II (articles 17 – 24):

Part II (articles 17 – 24) governs reporting and monitoring of the Convention and the steps taken by the parties to implement it. It establishes the Committee against Torture (Article 17), and empowers it to investigate allegations of systematic torture (Article 20). It also establishes an optional dispute-resolution mechanism between parties (Articles 21) and allows parties to recognize the competence of the Committee to hear complaints from individuals about violations of the Convention by a party (Article 22).

Part III (Articles 25 – 33):

Part III (Articles 25 – 33) governs ratification, entry into force, and amendment of the Convention. It also includes an optional arbitration mechanism for disputes between parties (Article 30).

Definition of Torture under the UNCAT: Article 1 of the Convention against Torture (CAT) provides a definition of Torture under the convention:

Article 1 -Definition:

“For the purposes of this Convention, the term "torture" means any act by which severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, is intentionally inflicted on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or a confession, punishing him for an act he or a third person has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating or coercing him or a third person, or for any reason based on discrimination of any kind, when such pain or suffering is inflicted by or at the instigation of or with the consent or acquiescence of a public official or other person acting in an official capacity. It does not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to lawful sanctions.”

This article is without prejudice to any international instrument or national legislation which does or may contain provisions of wider application.

It is possible to extract from Article-1 three essential factors necessary for an act to be torture:

1. The infliction of severe mental or physical pain or suffering;
2. By or with the consent or acquiescence of the State authorities;
3. For a specific purpose, such as gaining information, punishment or intimidation.

The acts of Torture:

The act of torture in the Convention refers to the deliberate infliction of severe pain or suffering upon a person, which can be either mental or physical in nature and caused by either a single isolated act, or a number of such acts. The nature and degree of suffering experienced by an individual may be difficult to verify objectively. It may depend on many personal characteristics of the victim—for example sex, age, religious or cultural beliefs, or health. In other cases, certain forms of ill-treatment or certain aspects of detention which would not constitute torture on their own may do so in combination with each other. The scope of 'severe' encompasses prolonged coercive or abusive conduct which in itself is not severe, but becomes so over a period of time. The test to be employed for so doing is a subjective one that takes account of the circumstances of each case.

The UN Special Rapporteur on Torture, in his 1986 report, provided a detailed, although not exhaustive, catalogue of those acts which involve the infliction of suffering severe enough to constitute the offence of torture, including: beating; extraction of nails, teeth, etc.; burns; electric shocks; suspension; suffocation; exposure to excessive light or noise; sexual aggression; administration of drugs or detention or psychiatric institutions; prolonged denial of rest or sleep; prolonged denial of food; prolonged denial of sufficient hygiene; prolonged denial of medical assistance; total isolation and sensory deprivation; being kept in constant uncertainty in terms of space and time; threats to torture or kill relatives; total abandonment; and simulated executions.

However, there are also many "grey areas" which either do not clearly amount to torture or about which there is still disagreement. Examples include:

- Judicial corporal punishment;
- Some forms of capital punishment;
- Solitary confinement;
- Certain aspects of poor prison conditions, particularly if experienced in combination;
- Disappearances, including their effect on the close relatives of the disappeared persons;
- Treatment inflicted on a child which might not be considered torture if inflicted on an adult.¹

Many of these areas may be considered as other forms of ill-treatment, which are distinguished in the Convention from torture by the degree of suffering involved and the need for a purposive element.

Different cultures, and indeed individuals within a particular culture, may have different perceptions of what amounts to torture. This can be relevant in two ways: On the one hand, it can mean that behaviour which is thought of as torture by a given culture or individual victim may not normally constitute torture in the eyes of the international bodies. On the other hand, it can mean that treatment which is consistently considered by the international community to amount to torture is not viewed as such by the person who has been subjected to it.²

² Camille Giffard, "The Torture Reporting Handbook", Human Rights Centre, University of Essex, 2000, p. 14.

The Convention, like other conventions referring to torture, includes the prohibition of "mental torture" within the scope of the prohibition of torture.

Article 1 of the Convention does not refer specifically to rape as a form of torture. However, international case law and the reports of the UN Special Rapporteur evince a momentum towards considering, through legal process, the use of rape in the course of detention and interrogation as a means of torture. Rape can be resorted to either by the interrogator or by other persons associated with the interrogation of a detainee, as a means of punishing, intimidating, coercing, or humiliating the victim, or obtaining information, or a confession, from the victim or a third person. In human rights law, rape under these circumstances amounts to torture, as demonstrated by the finding of the European Court of Human Rights in the case of Aydin v. Turkey, 1997³.

The International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia has formulated the issue of rape in the context of torture as follows:

"...Rape causes severe pain and suffering, both physical and psychological. The psychological suffering of persons upon whom rape is inflicted may be exacerbated by social and cultural conditions and can be particularly acute and long lasting. Furthermore, it is difficult to envisage circumstances in which rape, by, or at the instigation of a public official, or with the consent or acquiescence of an official, could be considered as occurring for a purpose that does not, in some way, involve punishment, coercion, discrimination or intimidation. Accordingly, whenever rape and other forms of sexual violence meet the aforementioned criteria, then they shall constitute torture, in the same manner as any other acts that meet these criteria."⁴

The Purpose of the act of Torture:

In order to be torture under the UNCAT an act must be intentionally inflicted "...for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or a confession, punishing him for an act he or a third person has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating or coercing him or a third person, or for any reason based on discrimination of any kind..." at the "instigation" i.e. incitement, inducement, or solicitation in direct or indirect involvement and participation of a public official raising State responsibility.

Public Official:

It follows from the text of Article 1 that the definition of 'torture' does not apply to private acts of cruelty. International concern arises only where cruelty has official sanction. The element of official sanction is stated in very broad terms and also extends to officials who take a passive attitude, or who turn a blind eye to torture committed against opponents of the government in power, be it by unofficial groups or by the authorities.⁵ Failure to act in such cases could well be interpreted at least as acquiescence.⁶

Lawful Sanction:

Pain and suffering arising from, inherent in, or incidental to a lawful sanction falls outside the ambit of torture. In the view of the UN Special Rapporteur on Torture, the "lawful sanctions" exclusion must necessarily refer to those sanctions that constitute practices widely accepted as legitimate by the international community, such as deprivation of liberty through imprisonment, which is common to almost all penal systems. Deprivation of liberty is a lawful sanction, if provided that it meets basic internationally accepted standards. However, a procedurally correct sanction could still fall within the scope of Article 1 of the Convention. The administration of such punishments as stoning to death, flogging, and amputation cannot be deemed lawful simply because the punishment has been authorized in a procedurally legitimate manner.

Minimum standard:

The definition of torture under the UNCAR in no way affects the protection which can be derived from other international instruments or from national legislation of wider application. In other words, insofar as other international instruments or national laws give the individual better protection, he or she is entitled to benefit from it; however, other international instruments or national law can never restrict the protection which the individual enjoys under UNCAT.

SHORT DESCRIPTIONS OF UNCRC:

Background to the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC): The roots of the UNCRC can be traced back to 1923 when Eglantyne Jebb, founder of Save the Children, summarized the rights of children in five points. Her Declaration of the Rights of the Child was adopted by the League of Nations in 1924 and the five points subsequently became known as the Declaration of Geneva. Following World War II, and its atrocities, the United Nations (UN) concentrated on producing the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (U.D.H.R.), which was adopted in 1948. Although the rights of children were implicitly included in this Declaration, it was felt by many to be insufficient and that the special needs of children justified an additional, separate document. In November 1959, the UN General Assembly adopted the second Declaration of the Rights of the Child, 1959. This consisted of ten principles and incorporated the guiding principle of working in the best interests of the child. However, this 1959 Declaration was not legally binding and was only a statement of general principles and intent. Ten years in the making, the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) was adopted by the UN General Assembly in 1989, exactly thirty years after the 1959 Declaration. On 2 September 1990 it entered into force as international law.

Summary of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC): The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) is a comprehensive, internationally binding agreement on the rights of children, adopted by the UN General Assembly in 1989. It incorporates children's:

- civil and political rights (like their treatment under the law);
- social, economic and cultural rights (like an adequate standard of living); and
- protection rights (from abuse and exploitation).

There are four main sections to the UNCRC:

- the Preamble, which sets out the major underlying principles of the UNCRC and provides a context for it;
- the substantive articles, which set out the rights of all children and the obligations of governments (Part I, Articles 1-41);
- the implementation provisions, which define how compliance with the UNCRC is to be monitored and fostered (Part II, Articles 42-45); and
- the conditions under which the UNCRC comes into force (Part III, Articles 46-54).

The Preamble:

The Preamble of the UNCRC acknowledges the family as the fundamental unit of society and the natural environment for the growth and well-being of children. The Preamble also states that the family should be afforded the necessary protection and assistance so that it can fully assume its responsibilities within the community.

The Substantive Articles:

Each of the substantive articles, Articles 1-41, details a different type of right. A common approach to the UNCRC is to group these articles together under the following themes:

1. Survival rights: include the child's right to life and the needs that are most basic to existence, such as nutrition, shelter, an adequate living standard, and access to medical services.
2. Development rights: include the right to education, play, leisure, cultural activities, access to information, and freedom of thought, conscience and religion.
3. Protection rights: ensure children are safeguarded against all forms of abuse, neglect and exploitation, including special care for refugee children; safeguards for children in the criminal justice system; protection for children in employment; protection and rehabilitation for children who have suffered exploitation or abuse of any kind.

4. Participation rights: encompass children's freedom to express opinions, to have a say in matters affecting their own lives, to join associations and to assemble peacefully. As their abilities develop, children are to have increasing opportunities to participate in the activities of their society, in preparation for responsible adulthood.

General Principles:

Within the UNCRC, four articles are accorded special emphasis, as they are basic to the implementation of all other rights. These four articles are often referred to as 'general principles'. These are:

- Article 2 which states that all the rights guaranteed by the UNCRC must be available to all children without discrimination of any kind;
- Article 3 which states that the best interests of the child must be a primary consideration in all actions concerning children;
- Article 6 which states that every child has the right to life, survival and development; and
- Article 12 which states that the child's view must be considered and taken into account in all matters affecting him or her.

Summary of the rights under the Convention on the Rights of the Child: The Convention defines in Article 1 a 'child' as a person below the age of 18 years, unless the laws of a particular country set the legal age for adulthood younger. The Committee on the Rights of the Child, the monitoring body for the Convention, has encouraged States to review the age of majority if it is set below 18 and to increase the level of protection for all children under 18. This convention set out the following rights for all children:

Article 2 (Non-discrimination):

The Convention applies to all children without any discrimination and guarantees that no child should be treated unfairly on any basis.

Article 3 (Best interests of the child):

The best interests of children must be the primary concern in making decisions that may affect them.

Article 4 (Protection of rights):

Governments have a responsibility to take all available measures to make sure children's rights are respected, protected and fulfilled.

Article 5 (Parental guidance):

Governments should respect the rights and responsibilities of families to direct and guide their children.

Article 6 (Survival and development):

Children have the right to live. Governments should ensure that children survive and develop healthily.

Article 7 (Registration, name, nationality, care):

All children have the right to a legally registered name, officially recognised by the government. Children have the right to a nationality and to be cared for by their parents, as far as possible,.

Article 8 (Preservation of identity):

Children have the right to an identity – an official record of who they are. Governments should respect children's right to a name, a nationality and family ties.

Article 9 (Separation from parents):

Children have the right to live with their parent(s), unless it is bad for them; and to stay in contact with both parents, unless this might hurt the child when his or her parents do not live together.

Article 10 (Family reunification):

Families whose members live in different countries should be allowed to move between those countries so that parents and children can stay in contact, or get back together as a family.

Article 11 (Kidnapping):

Governments should take steps to stop children being taken out of their own country illegally.

Article 12 (Respect for the views of the child):

Children have the right to say what they think should happen and have their opinions taken into account, when adults are making decisions affecting them.

Article 13 (Freedom of expression):

Children have the right to get and share information, as long as the information is not damaging to them or others.

Article 14 (Freedom of thought, conscience and religion):

Children have the right to think and believe what they want and to practise their religion.

Article 15 (Freedom of association):

Children have the right to meet together and to join groups and organisations.

Article 16 (Right to privacy):

Children have a right to privacy and the law should protect them from attacks against their way of life, their good name, their families and their homes.

Article 17 (Access to information; mass media):

Children have the right to get information that is important to their health and well-being.

Article 18 (Parental responsibilities; state assistance):

Both parents share responsibility for bringing up their children and should consider the best for each child. Governments have responsibility to provide support services to parents.

Article 19 (Protection from all forms of violence):

Children have the right to be protected from being hurt and mistreated, physically or mentally and be cared for and protected from violence, abuse and neglect by their parents, or anyone else who looks after them.

Article 20 (Children deprived of family environment):

Children who cannot be looked after by their own family have a right to special care and must be looked after properly.

Article 21 (Adoption):

Children have the right to care and protection if they are adopted or in foster care.

Article 22 (Refugee children):

Children have the right to special protection and help if they have been forced to leave their home and live in another country.

Article 23 (Children with disabilities):

Children who have any kind of disability have the right to special care and support so that they can live full and independent lives.

Article 24 (Health and health services):

Children have the right to good quality health care, to safe drinking water, nutritious food, a clean and safe environment and information to help them stay healthy.

Article 25 (Review of treatment in care):

Children who are looked after by their local authorities, rather than their parents, have the right to have these living arrangements looked at regularly to see if they are the most appropriate.

Article 26 (Social security):

Children have the right to help from the government if they are poor or in need either through their guardians or directly.

Article 27 (Adequate standard of living):

Children have the right to a standard of living, good enough to meet their physical and mental needs. Governments should help families and guardians with regard to food, clothing and housing.

Article 28: (Right to education):

All children have the right to a free primary education.

Article 29 (Goals of education):

Children's education should develop each child's personality, talents and abilities to the fullest. It should encourage children to respect others, human rights and their own and other cultures.

Article 30 (Children of minorities/indigenous groups):

Minority or indigenous children have the right to learn about and practice their own culture, language and religion. The right to practice one's own culture, language and religion applies to everyone.

Article 31 (Leisure, play and culture):

Children have the right to relax and play, and to join in a wide range of cultural, artistic and other recreational activities.

Article 32 (Child labour):

The government should protect children from work that is dangerous or might harm their health or their education.

Article 33 (Drug abuse):

Governments should use all means possible to protect children from the use of harmful drugs and from being used in the drug trade.

Article 34 (Sexual exploitation):

Governments should protect children from all forms of sexual exploitation and abuse. This provision in the Convention is augmented by the Optional Protocol on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography.

Article 35 (Abduction, sale and trafficking):

The government should take all possible measures to make sure that children are not abducted, sold or trafficked.

Article 36 (Other forms of exploitation):

Children should be protected from any activity that takes advantage of them or could harm their welfare and development.

Article 37 (Detention and punishment):

No one is allowed to punish children in a cruel or harmful way. Children who break the law should not be put in prison with adults, should be allowed to keep contact with their families, and should not be sentenced to death or life imprisonment.

Article 38 (War and armed conflicts):

Governments must do everything to protect and care for children affected by war. Children under 15 should not be forced or recruited to take part in a war or join the armed forces.

Article 39 (Rehabilitation of child victims):

Children who have been neglected, abused or exploited should receive special help to physically and psychologically recover and reintegrate into society.

Article 40 (Juvenile justice):

Children who are accused of breaking the law have the right to legal help and fair treatment in a justice system that respects their rights. Governments are required to set a minimum age of criminal responsibility for children and provide minimum guarantees for the fairness and quick resolution of proceedings relating to them.

Article 41 (Respect for superior national standards):

If the laws of a country provide better protection of children's rights than the articles of CRC, those laws should apply.

Article 42 (Knowledge of rights):

Governments should make the Convention known to adults and children. Adults should help children learn about their rights too.

CHAPTER- 4

PROTECTION AGAINST CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE AND EXPLOITATION ENUMERATED IN UNCRC AND UNCAT

Definitions of Child Sexual Abuse and Sexual Exploitation: Neither the United Nations' Convention against Torture nor the United Nations' Convention on Rights of Child has defined child sexual abuse or exploitation. However, Articles 34 and 35 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) require states to protect children from all forms of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. This includes outlawing the coercion of a child to perform sexual activity, the prostitution of children, and the exploitation of children in creating pornography. States are also required to prevent the abduction, sale, or trafficking of children.

Child Sexual Abuse:

Child sexual abuse is a form of child abuse in which an adult or older adolescent uses a child for sexual stimulation. Forms of child sexual abuse includes asking or pressuring a child to engage in sexual activities (regardless of the outcome), indecent exposure (of the genitals, female nipples, etc.) to a child with intent to gratify their own sexual desires or to intimidate or groom the child, physical sexual contact with a child, or using a child to produce child pornography. Under the law, "child sexual abuse" is an umbrella term describing criminal and civil offenses in which an adult engages in sexual activity with a child or exploits a child for the purpose of sexual gratification. A child sexual abuse offense where the perpetrator is related to the child, either by blood or marriage, is a form of incest described as intra-familial child sexual abuse. Child sexual abuse includes a variety of sexual offenses, including:

Sexual assault – a term defining offenses in which an adult touches a minor for the purpose of sexual gratification; for example, rape (including sodomy), and sexual penetration with an object.

Sexual exploitation – a term defining offenses in which an adult victimizes a minor for advancement, sexual gratification, or profit; for example, prostituting a child, and creating or trafficking in child pornography.

Sexual grooming – defines the social conduct of a potential child sex offender who seeks to make a minor more accepting of their advances, for example in an online chat room.

Child sexual abuse is outlawed nearly everywhere in the world, generally with severe criminal penalties, including in some jurisdictions, life imprisonment or capital punishment. An adult's sexual intercourse with a child below the legal age of consent is defined as statutory rape, based on the principle that a child is not capable of consent and that any apparent consent by a child is not considered to be legal consent.

Sexual Exploitation of Children:

Like UNCAT and UNCRC no other international instrument defines sexual exploitation, and opinions differ on the distinction between sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. In the context of the Optional Protocol of the UNCRC on Sale of Children etc (OPSC) sexual exploitation clearly includes child prostitution and child pornography, which includes the production of child pornography or participation of children in pornographic performances. Another practice that could be considered “sale for the purposes of sexual exploitation” is the so-called temporary marriage still practised in some parts of the world. Some types involve girls given in marriage to men –often older men – in exchange for money. These marriages may be for a few weeks or for several months, after which the girls are abandoned by their husbands and deprived of the rights acquired by marriage. The term sexual exploitation also includes some practices that are neither prostitution nor sale. They include sexual slavery and sexual relations between an adult and a child under his or her control without compensation of any kind being given to the child. Such practices would include sexual relations between a child in detention and a police officer or prison officer, a child domestic servant and his or her employer, or a child confined in a home for orphans or children with disabilities and staff members in the home.

However, a declaration of the World Congress against Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children, held in Stockholm in 1996, defined Commercial sexual exploitation of children (CSEC) as:

‘sexual abuse by the adult and remuneration in cash or kind to the child or a third person or persons. The child is treated as a sexual object and as a commercial object.’

CSEC includes the prostitution of children, child pornography, child sex tourism and other forms of transactional sex where a child engages in sexual activities to have key needs fulfilled, such as food, shelter or access to education. It includes forms of transactional sex where the sexual abuse of children is not stopped or reported by household members, due to benefits derived by the household from the perpetrator.

Forms of sexual exploitation:

Prostitution of children under the age of 18 years, child pornography and the (often related) sale and trafficking of children are often considered to be crimes of violence against children. They are considered to be forms of economic exploitation akin to forced labour or slavery. According to the International Labour Organization, sexual exploitation of children includes all of the following practices and activities:

- "The use of girls and boys in sexual activities remunerated in cash or in kind (commonly known as child prostitution) in the streets or indoors, in such places as brothels, discotheques, massage parlours, bars, hotels, restaurants, etc."
- "The trafficking of girls and boys and adolescents for the sex trade"
- "Child sex tourism"
- "The production, promotion and distribution of pornography involving children"
- "The use of children in sex shows (public or private)"

The UNCRC has a Optional Protocol on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography. Bangladesh has signed and ratified this Optional Protocol too. This Protocol gave definitions of some form of sexual exploitation of children. The Article 2 of the protocol is the relevant article for such definition:

Article 2 - Definition of the terms ‘Sale of Children’, ‘Child Prostitution’ and ‘Child Pornography’:

For the purposes of the present Protocol:

- (a) Sale of children means any act or transaction whereby a child is transferred by any person or group of persons to another for remuneration or any other consideration;
- (b) Child prostitution means the use of a child in sexual activities for remuneration or any other form of consideration;
- (c) Child pornography means any representation, by whatever means, of a child engaged in real or simulated explicit sexual activities or any representation of the sexual parts of a child for primarily sexual purposes.

Protection against child sexual abuse and exploitation enumerated in UNCAT: The UNCAT does not specifically provide any right for the children and any right for protection from sexual abuse and exploitation. It only termed the victims as ‘person’ which includes a child as well. Therefore, all the rights enumerated in UNCAT are also applicable for the children. As a result, UNCAT ensures the rights of child from being a subject to torture, cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment or punishment. However, there is question whether sexual abuse and exploitation are addressed by the UNCAT. The act of torture in the Convention, as we know, refers to the deliberate infliction of severe pain or suffering upon a person, which can be either mental or physical in nature and caused by either a single isolated act, or a number of such acts. Whenever any act of sexual abuse and exploitation is committed by or at the instigation of or with the consent or acquiescence of a public official or other person acting in an official capacity inflicts severe pain or suffering, either physical or mental, upon a child, it constitutes an act of torture as defined in the UNCAT. This view has been established and supported by judicial interpretation in different cases mentioned earlier. Like an adult, a child, therefore, become entitled to get the protections as provided in the Convention against Torture. Thus the rights and protection enumerated in the different Articles of the UNCAT provides protection to the children from sexual abuse and exploitation when such abuse and exploitation amount to torture under the UNCAT.

Protection against child sexual abuse and exploitation enumerated in UNCRC: There are several articles in the UNCRC that deal with sexual abuse and exploitation. These articles includes protection of children from kidnapping (Article 11), Sexual exploitation (Article 34), abduction, sale and trafficking (Article 35), other forms of exploitation (Article 36), detention with adults (Article 37). These articles have been reproduced and compared with the national legal and other instruments in Chapter 9.

In addition to the aforementioned articles the UNCRC has a Optional Protocol on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography. Bangladesh has signed and ratified this Optional Protocol too. This Protocol has gave detailed protection of children from sexual exploitation for financial gain. Some of these articles have also been reproduced and compared with the national legal and other instruments in Chapter 9.

CHAPTER- 5

IMPLEMENTATION MECHANISMS OF UNCRC & UNCAT

The Implementation Mechanisms of UNCAT: The Committee against Torture formed under UNCAT is entrusted with monitoring implementation of the rights under the Convention Against Torture. The Committee constitutes a new United Nations body, entrusted with the specific supervision of a multilateral instrument for protection against torture and other inhuman treatment. The Convention sets out a number of obligations designed to strengthen the sphere of protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms, while conferring upon the Committee against Torture broad powers of examination and investigation calculated to ensure their effectiveness in practice.

Functions of the Committee:

The Committee normally holds two regular sessions each year. Special sessions, however, may be convened by decision of the Committee itself at the request of a majority of its members or of a State Party to the Convention. The Committee may invite specialized agencies, United Nations bodies concerned, regional intergovernmental organizations and non-governmental organizations in consultative status with the Economic and Social Council to submit to it information, documentation and written statements, as appropriate, relevant to the Committee's activities under the Convention. It submits an annual report on its activities to the States Parties and to the General Assembly of the United Nations. By virtue of article 20 of the Convention, the Committee is empowered to receive information and to institute inquiries concerning allegations of systematic practice of torture in the States Parties.

Reporting by the States Parties:

Pursuant to article 19 of the Convention, each State Party shall submit to the Committee, through the Secretary-General of the United Nations, reports on the measures taken to give effect to its undertakings under the Convention. The first report must be submitted within one year after the entry into force of the Convention for the State concerned; thereafter supplementary reports shall be submitted every four years on any subsequent developments. Further reports and additional information may also be requested by the Committee. For the examination of the reports, the Committee invites representatives of the States Parties to attend the meetings when their reports are considered. It may also inform a State Party from which it decides to seek further information that it may authorize its representative to be present at a specified meeting. Such a representative should be able to answer questions which may be put to him by the Committee and clarify, if need be, certain aspects of the reports already submitted by his State. After its consideration of each report, the Committee, in accordance with article 19, paragraph 3, of the Convention, may make such general comments on the report as it may consider appropriate.

Inter-State Complaints:

The conduct, with respect to the States Parties, of proceedings relating to the inter-State complaints mentioned in article 21 of the Convention is subordinated to the recognition by those States of the competence of the Committee. With respect to those States which have deposited the declaration specified in article 21, the Committee may receive and consider communications in which a State Party alleges that another State Party is not discharging its obligations under the Convention.

Individual complaints:

Like many other international instruments relating to human rights, the Convention on Torture gives private individuals, in certain circumstances, the right to lodge with the Committee complaints regarding the violation of one or more of its provisions by a State Party. For the Committee to be able to admit and examine individual communications against a State Party, its competence in that regard must however have been expressly recognized by the State concerned. Individual complaints are always examined by the Committee in closed meeting.

The Implementation Mechanisms of UNCRC: There is a Committee und the UNCRC to monitor the implementation of the rights provided in the Child Rights Convention. Each State Party is required to submit a report two years after ratification of the Convention. Progress reports are required every five years after that. The Committee may also request a complementary report or additional information between these periods⁷. The implementation mechanism of the UNCRC and the Committee on the Rights of the Child is described below:

The Constitution of the Committee on the Rights of the Child:

The Committee is composed of 18 independent experts who are elected in their personal capacity to four-year terms by States Parties. An equitable geographical distribution and representation of the principal legal systems is taken into consideration in their selection. Each State Party has the right to nominate one person from its country to serve on the Committee. Although the Convention only requires that Committee members be of ‘high moral standing’ and competent in the fields covered by the Convention, other possible criteria could include: demonstrated expertise in the field of human rights, particularly children’s rights; the ability to devote sufficient time to the work of the Committee; representation from a wide variety of professional backgrounds; experience of working with non-governmental organisations; awareness and sensitivity to cultural differences; and fluency in one of the three working languages (English, French or Spanish) of the Committee. The work of Committee members is not remunerated.

The Functions of the Committee on the Rights of the Child:

The Committee meets in Geneva three times a year for a period of four weeks for each session. The Committee is responsible for examining the progress made by States Parties ⁷Parts II (articles 42 to 45) and III (articles 46 to 54) of the UNCRC illustrate the provisions pertaining to accession, ratification, monitoring and reporting on the progress made by States Parties against all the articles of the UNCRC. According to article 43, a high-level Committee of experts is formed to examine the progress made by States Parties. This Committee is widely known as the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child Committee.

in fulfilling their obligations under the Convention and the Optional Protocols. A small permanent Secretariat at the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights in Geneva is responsible for providing support and advice to the Committee. The Committee on the Rights of the Child holds a general discussion every September in Geneva on a specific article of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child or related subject. These meetings provide an opportunity to foster a deeper understanding of the contents and implications of the UNCRC.

Reporting to the Committee and the Role of States Parties:

States Parties to the UNCRC are required to submit an initial report two years after ratification and progress reports every five years.⁸ States Parties to the Optional Protocols are also required to submit an initial report two years after ratification, but then progress reports are included in the progress reports on the implementation of the Convention. The report is examined and discussed by the Committee, preferably with government representatives who are directly involved at the national level with the implementation of the Convention. At the end of the dialogue, the Committee prepares Concluding Observations which reflect the main points of discussion and indicate concerns and issues which would require specific follow-up action at the national level.

Alternative Reporting:

The Committee on the Rights of the Child may invite specialised agencies, UNICEF and ‘other competent bodies’ to provide expert advice on the implementation of the Convention.⁹ The term ‘other competent bodies’ includes non-governmental organisations. The Convention expressly gives NGOs a role in monitoring its implementation. Any complementary information received by the Committee is then reviewed in the presence of these organisations during the pre-sessional working group composed of a few Committee members. The working group prepares a list of issues to be submitted in advance to the government. Governments are requested to respond to these questions in writing before the plenary session where State reports are discussed with the State representatives.

⁸ Article 44 of UNCRC

⁹ Article 45 (a) of UNCRC

Examination and Consideration of the Reports by the Committee:

There are several ways in which Alternative and State Party reports are considered in the Committee.

Pre-sessional working group: Prior to the Committee session at which the State Party's report is reviewed, the pre-sessional working group of the Committee convenes a private meeting with UN agencies and bodies, NGOs and other competent bodies such as National Human Rights institutions and youth organisations which have submitted Alternative reports to the Committee. The pre-sessional working group of the Committee is an opportunity to conduct a preliminary review of the State Party report and to examine supplementary and alternative information. The working group meets three times a year to identify, in advance, the main questions to be discussed with those States Parties which will appear before the Committee during the following session. The working group normally meets in Geneva during a five-day period directly following a plenary session of the Committee. As it is a working group, not all members of the Committee may be present. The end result of the pre-sessional working group's discussion on a State report is a 'list of issues'. The list of issues is intended to give the government a preliminary indication of the issues which the Committee considers to be priorities for discussion. It also gives the Committee the opportunity to request additional or updated information in writing from the government prior to the session.

The plenary session on State Party reports: The State Party report should be sent electronically to the Secretariat of the Committee at the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights in Geneva. The Committee then schedules it for examination at the next available session. Priority is given, however, to the examination of initial reports. The Committee tries to examine all reports within one year of receipt based on the order in which they are received. The Committee invites nine States Parties as an average to present their reports at each session, with one day (two meetings of three hours each) devoted to public examination of each report. In addition, the Committee generally devotes between two and three hours towards the end of the session, in private, to its discussion of each set of Concluding Observations.

Concluding Observations: After the discussion with the State Party, the Committee delivers Concluding Observations which include suggestions and recommendations. The Concluding Observations usually contain the following aspects: introduction; positive aspects (including progress achieved); factors and difficulties impeding the implementation; principal subjects for concern; suggestions and recommendations addressed to the State Party.

The Role of N.G.O. Group:

The NGO Group for the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child has been in existence since 1983 when the drafting of the Convention began. The NGO Group's mission is to facilitate the promotion, implementation and monitoring of the Convention. The NGO group ensures effective interaction between national and international NGOs and the Committee on the Rights of the Child. The main activities of the NGO Group focus on supporting national NGOs and coalitions from over 160 countries in reporting on the UNCRC and its Protocols.

Implementation mechanism of the optional protocol on sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography: The implementation mechanism of the Optional Protocol on Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography has been described in Article 12 of the Protocol which requires each State Party to submit a report to the Committee on the Rights of the Child providing comprehensive information on the measures it has taken to implement the provisions of the Protocol within two years following the entry into force of the present Protocol for that State Party. Following the submission of the comprehensive report, each State Party shall include any further information with respect to the implementation of the present Protocol in the reports they submit to the Committee on the Rights of the Child, in accordance with article 44 of the Convention. Other States Parties to the Protocol are required to submit a report every five years. The Committee on the Rights of the Child may request from States Parties further information relevant to the implementation of the present Protocol.

CHAPTER- 6

STATUS OF UNCAT AND UNCRC AS INTERNATIONAL LAW IN BANGLADESH

Generally, the application of international law in domestic spheres revolves around theoretical discussion of the relationship between international law and municipal law, which is usually explained by two competing theories: dualism and monism. Bangladesh adheres to the principle of dualism i.e. international law does not upon ratification become automatically effective and cannot be directly invoked in its courts. It requires incorporation into domestic legislation in the form of a new law or amendment of existing legislation to ensure conformity with the Convention.

Despite accessing into the UNCAT on 5 October, 1998 and subsequent ratification and also ratification of CRC in 1990, the Government of Bangladesh until recently did not undertake any comprehensive review of its legislation regarding children. Hence, the Committee on the Rights of the Child in its 1993, 2003 and 2009 Concluding Observations¹⁰ on the Initial¹¹ and Periodic State Reports¹² of Bangladesh expressed its concern about “the unclear status of the Convention in the domestic legal framework and the insufficient steps to bring existing legislation into full conformity with the Convention.”¹³ It recommended to “take all effective measures to harmonise its domestic legislation fully with the provisions and principles of the Convention.”¹⁴ However, the Committee against Torture could not pass any such comment or recommendation regarding implementation of obligations under convention against torture as Bangladesh has not submitted any report to this committee.

¹⁰ Concluding Observations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child, Bangladesh, U.N. Doc. CRC A/53/41 (1998), CRC/C/15/Add.221 (2003) and CRC /C/BGD/CO/4 (2009)

¹³ Concluding Observations (1998), para.12

¹⁴ Concluding Observations (2003), para. 13

In the absence of comprehensive legislative reform being undertaken by the Government of Bangladesh, the question arises whether the CRC and CAT can be relied upon in Court. In this regard reference may also be made to the decision in *Hussain Muhammad Ershad vs Bangladesh and others*¹⁵ per Bimalendu Bikash Roy Choudhury, J.

“2. True it is that Universal Human Rights norms, whether given in the Universal Declaration or in the Covenants, are not directly enforceable in national Courts. But if their provisions are incorporated into the domestic law, they are enforceable in national Courts.(.....) The national Courts should not, I feel, straightaway ignore the international obligation, which a country undertakes. If the domestic laws are not clear enough or there is nothing therein, the national Courts should draw upon the principles incorporated in the international instruments. But in the cases where the domestic laws are clear and inconsistent with the international obligation of the State concerned, the national Courts will be obliged to respect the national laws, but shall draw the attention of the law makers to such inconsistencies.”

In the *State vs Metropolitan Police Commissioner*¹⁶ the High Court Division of the Supreme Court of Bangladesh quoting several Articles from CRC recommended that “the Legislature should consider amending the Children Act, 1974 or formulating new laws giving effect to the provisions of the UNCRC, as is the mandate of that Convention upon the signatories.”

However, after the enactment of Paribarik Shahingshata (Protirodh of Shuroksha) Ain, 2010 two international human rights instrument got more binding force in the courts of Bangladesh. In the long title and the preamble of this Act it has been very specifically stated that the purpose of this law is to protect women and children from domestic violence in order to establish their right to equality as a signatory State of the UNCRC and CEDAW. As a result, if any provision of the Paribarik Shahingshata Ain, 2010 is found inconsistent with the provisions of UNCRC and CEDAW the appropriate courts of Bangladesh may exercise its power declaring the provision of this Act unfair, unreasonable and thus invalid.

CHAPTER- 7

OBLIGATIONS OF BANGLADESH AS A STATE PARTY TO

UNCRC & UNCAT.

Obligations of Bangladesh under United Nations' Convention against Torture:

Bangladesh is a state party to this convention. It accessed into this convention on 5 October, 1998, but has not submitted any report yet. Bangladesh has a declaration that the government will apply Article 14 paragraph 1 of the Convention inconsonance with existing laws and legislation of the country. As a state party Bangladesh has the following obligations to give effect to the Convention:

Prevention, Non-derogability, Non-justification (Article 2)

- i) To take effective legislative, administrative, judicial or other measures to prevent acts of torture in any territory under its jurisdiction.
- ii) Not to invoke any exceptional circumstances whatsoever, whether a state of war or a threat of war, internal political instability or any other public emergency, as a justification of torture.

Duty not to expel individuals at the risk of torture (non- refoulment), all relevant considerations assessed (Article 3)

- iii) Not to expel, return ("refouler") or extradite a person to another State where there are substantial grounds for believing that he would be in danger of being subjected to torture. For the purpose of determining whether there are such grounds, to take into account all relevant considerations including, where applicable, the existence in the State concerned of a consistent pattern of gross, flagrant or mass violations of human rights.

Definition as crime, appropriate punishment (Article 4)

- iv) To ensure that all acts of torture, attempts to commit torture, and participation in torture are offences under its criminal law.
- v) To make the aforesaid offences punishable by appropriate penalties which take into account their grave nature.

Obligations under UNCRC: Bangladesh has signed and ratified the Child Rights Convention in 1990. However it has reservations on Article nos. 14(1) i.e. on right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion and on Article 21 i.e. on the system of adoption. Bangladesh declared that the state shall apply Article 21 subject to the existing laws and practices in Bangladesh. As a State party to the UNCRC Bangladesh has following obligations:

Under Article 2:

- i) To respect and ensure the rights set forth in the UNCRC to each child within its jurisdiction without discrimination of any kind, irrespective of the child's or his or her parent's or legal guardian's race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national, ethnic or social origin, property, disability, birth or other status.
- ii) To take all appropriate measures to ensure that the child is protected against all forms of discrimination or punishment on the basis of the status, activities, expressed opinions, or beliefs of the child's parents, legal guardians, or family members.

Under Article 3

- iii) To ensure that in all actions concerning children, whether undertaken by public or private social welfare institutions, courts of law, administrative authorities or legislative bodies, the best interests of the child shall be a primary consideration.
- iv) To ensure the child such protection and care as is necessary for his or her well-being, taking into account the rights and duties of his or her parents, legal guardians, or other individuals legally responsible for him or her, and, to this end, shall take all appropriate legislative and administrative measures.
- v) To ensure that the institutions, services and facilities responsible for the care or protection of children shall conform with the standards established by competent authorities, particularly in the areas of safety, health, in the number and suitability of their staff, as well as competent supervision.

Under Article 4

- vi) To undertake all appropriate legislative, administrative, and other measures for the implementation of the rights recognized in the Child rights Convention. With regard to economic, social and cultural rights, to undertake such measures to the maximum extent of its available resources and, where needed, within the framework of international co-operation.

Obligations under the Optional Protocol: Bangladesh is also a state party to the Optional Protocol on sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, 2000. It has signed and ratified this optional protocol in the year 2000 without any reservation. The obligations of Bangladesh as a state party to the Optional Protocol are mentioned below under the relevant Articles:

Under Article 1:

- i) To prohibit the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography as provided for by the present Protocol.

Under Article 3

- ii) To ensure that, as a minimum, the following acts and activities are fully covered under its criminal or penal law, whether such offences are committed domestically or transnationally or on an individual or organized basis:

(a) In the context of sale of children as defined in article 2 of the Convention:

(i) Offering, delivering or accepting, by whatever means, a child for the purpose of: a. Sexual exploitation of the child; b. Transfer of organs of the child for profit; c. Engagement of the child in forced labour;

(ii) Improperly inducing consent, as an intermediary, for the adoption of a child in violation of applicable international legal instruments on adoption;

(b) Offering, obtaining, procuring or providing a child for child prostitution, as defined in article 2;

(c) Producing, distributing, disseminating, importing, exporting, offering, selling or possessing for the above purposes child pornography as defined in article 2.

- iii) Subject to the provisions of the national law of Bangladesh to an attempt to commit any of the said acts and to complicity or participation in any of the said acts.
- iv) To make such offences punishable by appropriate penalties that take into account their grave nature.
- v) Subject to the provisions of the national law to take measures, where appropriate, to establish the liability of legal persons for aforesaid offences.
- vi) To take all appropriate legal and administrative measures to ensure that all persons involved in the adoption of a child act in conformity with applicable international legal instruments.

Under Article 4

- vii) to take such measures as may be necessary to establish jurisdiction of Bangladesh over the offences referred to in article 3, paragraph 1 of the UNCRC, when the offences are committed in the territory of Bangladesh or on board, a ship or aircraft registered in Bangladesh.
- viii) to take, if necessary, such measures as may be necessary to establish jurisdiction of Bangladesh over the offences referred to in article 3, paragraph 1 of the convention, in the following cases:
 - (a) when the alleged offender is a national of Bangladesh or a person who has his habitual residence in this territory;
 - (b) when the victim is a national of Bangladesh.
- ix) To take such measures as may be necessary to establish jurisdiction over the aforementioned offences when the alleged offender is present in Bangladesh and Bangladesh does not extradite him or her to another State Party on the ground that the offence has been committed by one of its nationals.

Under Article 5

- x) To consider that the offences referred to in article 3, paragraph 1 of the protocol, to be included as extraditable offences in any extradition treaty existing between States Parties and include as extraditable offences in every extradition treaty subsequently concluded, in accordance with the conditions set forth in such treaties.
- xi) To consider, if necessary, the present Protocol to be a legal basis for extradition in respect of such offences if Bangladesh makes extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty receives a request for extradition from another State Party with which Bangladesh has no extradition treaty.

- xii) To recognize such offences as extraditable offences between themselves on the existence of a treaty with a State party subject to the conditions provided by the law of the requested State.
- xiii) To treat, for the purpose of extradition between States Parties, as if they had been committed not only in the place in which they occurred but also in the territories of the States required to establish their jurisdiction in accordance with article 4.
- xiv) To take suitable measures to submit the case to competent authorities of Bangladesh for the purpose of prosecution if an extradition request is made with respect to an offence described in article 3, paragraph 1, and if Bangladesh does not extradite on the basis of the nationality of the offender.

Under Article 6

- xv) To afford other state parties the greatest measure of assistance in connection with investigations or criminal or extradition proceedings brought in respect of the offences set forth in article 3, paragraph 1, including assistance in obtaining evidence at their disposal necessary for the proceedings.
- xvi) To carry out obligations under paragraph 1 of article 6 in conformity with any treaties or other arrangements on mutual legal assistance that may exist between them. In the absence of such treaties or arrangements, like other States Parties to afford one another assistance in accordance with domestic law.

Under Article 7

- xvii) Subject to the provisions of the national law of Bangladesh to take measures to provide for the seizure and confiscation, as appropriate, of goods, such as materials, assets and other instrumentalities used to commit or facilitate offences under the present protocol; and proceeds derived from such offences; to execute requests from another State Party for seizure or confiscation of such goods or proceeds; and to take measures aimed at closing, on a temporary or definitive basis, premises used to commit such offences.

Under Article 8

- xviii) To adopt appropriate measures to protect the rights and interests of child victims of the practices prohibited under this Protocol at all stages of the criminal justice process particularly by: (a) recognizing the vulnerability of child victims and adapting procedures to recognize their special needs, including their special needs as witnesses; (b) informing child victims of their rights, their role and the scope, timing and progress of the proceedings and of the disposition of their cases; (c) allowing the views, needs and concerns of child victims to be presented and considered in proceedings where their personal interests are affected, in a manner consistent with the procedural rules of national law; (d) providing appropriate support services to child victims throughout the legal process; (e) protecting, as appropriate, the privacy and identity of child victims and taking measures in accordance with national law to avoid the inappropriate dissemination of information that could lead to the identification of child victims; (f) providing, in appropriate cases, for the safety of child victims, as well as that of their families and witnesses on their behalf, from intimidation and retaliation; (g) avoiding unnecessary delay in the disposition of cases and the execution of orders or decrees granting compensation to child victims
- xix) To ensure that uncertainty as to the actual age of the victim shall not prevent the initiation of criminal investigations, including investigations aimed at establishing the age of the victim.
- xx) To ensure that, in the treatment by the criminal justice system of children who are victims of the offences described in the present Protocol, the best interest of the child shall be a primary consideration.
- xxi) To take measures to ensure appropriate training, in particular legal and psychological training, for the persons who work with victims of the offences prohibited under the present Protocol.
- xxii) To adopt, in appropriate cases, measures in order to protect the safety and integrity of those persons and/or organizations involved in the prevention and/or protection and rehabilitation of victims of such offences.

Under Article 9

- xxiii) To adopt or strengthen, implement and disseminate laws, administrative measures, social policies and programmes to prevent the offences referred to in the present

Protocol with particular attention to protect children who are especially vulnerable to such practices.

- xxiv) To promote awareness in the public at large, including children, through information about the preventive measures and harmful effects of the offences referred to in this Protocol. In fulfilling obligations under article 9 Bangladesh shall encourage the participation of the community.
- xxv) To take all feasible measures with the aim of ensuring all appropriate assistance to victims of such offences, including their full social reintegration and their full physical and psychological recovery.
- xxvi) To ensure that all child victims of the offences described in this Protocol have access to adequate procedures to seek, without discrimination, compensation for damages from those legally responsible.
- xxvii) To take appropriate measures aimed at effectively prohibiting the production and dissemination of material advertising the offences described in the present Protocol.

Under Article 10

- xxviii) To take all necessary steps to strengthen international cooperation by multilateral, regional and bilateral arrangements for the prevention, detection, investigation, prosecution and punishment of those responsible for acts involving the sale of children, child prostitution, child pornography and child sex tourism.
- xxix) To promote international cooperation and coordination between their authorities, national and international non-governmental organizations and international organizations.
- xxx) To promote international cooperation to assist child victims in their physical and psychological recovery, social reintegration and repatriation.
- xxxi) To promote the strengthening of international cooperation in order to address the root causes, such as poverty and underdevelopment, contributing to the vulnerability of children to the sale of children, child prostitution, child pornography and child sex tourism.

CHAPTER- 8

National Legal Instruments for the Protection of Children from Torture, Sexual Abuse and Exploitation

The Constitution of the People's Republic of Bangladesh in its chapter on fundamental rights dealt protection from torture. On the other hand, there are some laws in force in Bangladesh for prosecuting cases relating to sexual offences. Some other laws are relevant for proper trial of such cases like the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the Evidence Act, 1872, the Children Act, 1974 etc. There are some other laws, which in indirect ways provide protection toward children from being victim of abuse and exploitation. These are the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, the Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929, the Bangladesh Sromo Ain, 2006 etc. These national legal instruments for the protection of children from sexual abuse and exploitation briefly discussed here. However, for the benefit this study, these laws clustered in two groups:

First, laws enacted prior to being party to the UNCAT and UNCRC; and Secondly, laws enacted after being party to the UNCAT and UNCRC.

Clustering the laws in such groups will assist us in examining adherence of Bangladesh in legislation to its obligations under UNCAT and UNCRC after its ratification of these two instruments.

Laws enacted prior to being party to the UNCAT and UNCRC:

Constitution of the People's Republic of Bangladesh, 1972: Article 35 of the Constitution of Bangladesh provides protection from torture, inhuman or degrading punishment or treatment. The Constitution of Bangladesh does not have any specific provision relating to sexual abuse and exploitation. However, some of its Articles can be extended to provide legal protection to the child from sexual abuse and sexual exploitation. Article 14 of the Constitution prohibits all sorts of exploitations and Article 15 of the same ensures the right to social security that is to say to public assistance in cases of undeserved want arising from unemployment, illness or disablement, or suffered by orphans. Article 17 of the Constitution provides for adopting effective measures for the purpose of establishing a uniform mass-oriented and universal system of education and extending free and compulsory education to all children to such stage as may be determined by law. Article 18(2) provides that the State shall adopt effective measures to prevent prostitution and gambling. Although discrimination has been prohibited Article 28 of the Constitution provides that the state shall not be prevented from making special provision in favor of children. Article 31 of the Constitution guarantees every citizen the right to enjoy the protection of law wherever they may be. The implication of this provision is that to enjoy the protection of law it is not essential for a citizen to be on the territory of Bangladesh. In other words, the state is obliged to ensure the protection of law internally and extraterritorially. Therefore, the obligation of Bangladesh state for repatriation of trafficked victims is very much implied in this fundamental right provision of the Constitution of Bangladesh. Article 34(1) prohibits all forms of forced labor.

The Penal Code, 1860 (Act No. XLV of 1860): The Penal Code is the major substantive penal law of Bangladesh. It broadly defines and also penalizes almost all kinds of general offences. There are specific sections relating to sexual offences committed with women and children. However, nowadays, because of many new enactments many of penal provisions of the Penal Code relating to sexual offences became almost abundant. Although, the definitions of sexual offences given in the Penal Code has been referred and relied on by the new enactments.

Under Section 90 of the Penal Code consent is not consent if it is given by a person who is under 12 years of age. Kidnapping of a male under 14 years of age and a female under 16 years of age from the lawful guardianship is an offence under section 361 of the code, and kidnapping or abducting a person under the age of 10 is also an offence under section 364 A of the Penal Code.

Procurement of a minor girl is an offence under section 366 A of the Code. Life of the child begins in the womb of the mother. The child has a right to remain secure there unless the life of the mother demands it. In a competition between the two, mother wins her life at the cost of the child. Provisions relating to abortion are available in sections 312-316 of the Penal Code. Section 317 speaks of abandonment of children by parent. Offences connected with prostitution have been described in Sections 366B, 372 and 373 of the Penal Code. Kidnapping or Trafficking children are offences under Sections 369, 372 and 373 of the Penal Code.

The Divorce Act, 1869 (Act No. IV of 1869): In this Act ‘minor children’ means in the case of sons of fathers domiciled in Bangladesh, boys who have not completed the age of 16 years and in the case of daughters of fathers domiciled in Bangladesh, girls who have not completed the age of 13 years, in other case it means unmarried children who have not completed the age of 18 years.

The Evidence Act, 1872 (Act 1 of 1872): Rule of Estoppel under section 115 of the Act does not apply to a child. Under section 118 of the Act all persons shall be competent to testify unless the court considers that they are prevented from understanding the questions put to them or from giving rational answers to those questions, due to tender years, extreme old age, disease whether of body or mind or any other cause of same kind. The tender age of a witness does not ipso facto render him or her incompetent to appear as a witness to give testimony. This section vests the court with the discretion to decide whether an infant is or not disqualified to be a witness by reason of understanding or lack of understanding.

The Majority Act, 1875 (Act No. IX of 1875): By section 3 of the Act, a person is deemed to have attained majority when he completes the age of 18 years but if a guardian of the person or property or both of a minor under the Guardians and Wards Act 1890 or the Court of Wards assumes Superintendence of the minor before the age of 18 years, the age of majority is extended to 21 years. Section 2 of this Act excludes its application in respect of certain matters viz. marriage, dower, divorce and adoption. In these matters, Personal Law (i.e. Hindu Law. Muslim Law etc.) will apply.

The Guardians and Wards Act, 1890 (Act No. VIII of 1890): In this Act ‘minor’ means a person who is generally below eighteen. ‘Guardian’ means a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property or of both his person and property ‘ward’ means a minor for whose person or property or both, there is a guardian. On the application of the person desirous of being, or claiming to be, the guardian of the minor or any relative of the friend of the minor or the collector of the district or other local area within which the minor ordinarily resides or in which he has property, and if the court is satisfied that it is for the welfare of a minor, the court may make an order for appointing a guardian of the minor's person or property or both or for declaring a person to be such a guardian.

The Code of Criminal Procedure 1898 (Act No. 5 of 1898) By section 199 of the criminal procedure Code it has been provided that a court shall not take cognizance of an offence of adultery under section 497 of the Penal Code or enticing or taking away or detaining a married woman with criminal intent under section 498 of that code except on the complaint of the husband of the woman. The first proviso to section 199 enacts that where such husband is under 18 years, some other person may, with the leave of the court, make a complain on his behalf.

Under Section 514B of the Code when the person required by any court or officer to execute a bond is a minor, such Court or officer May accept, in lieu thereof, a bond executed by a surety sureties only. Under Section 562 of the code, the court can release certain convicted first offenders under 21 years of age on probation of good conduct instead of sentencing them to punishment. Section 118 of the Code provides for execution of bond by the securities of the minor.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act V of 1908): Order 32 of the Code deals with the minor's capacity for prosecuting or defending a suit through a person who is called in such suit the next friend or guardian-ad-litem of the minor. The term "next friend" means a person through whom a minor, is represented in a litigation. Guardian-ad-litem of the minor defendant is appointed by the court. No application on behalf of the minor can be filed by a person who is neither a natural guardian nor a certificated guardian nor a guardian-ad-litem of the minor. Compromise or consent decree can be passed under Order 23 of the Code if the next friend or guardian-ad-litem gives written consent therein on behalf of the minor.

The Limitation Act, 1908 (Act No. IX of 1908): Under section 6 of the Limitation Act, where a person entitled to institute a suit or make an application for the execution of a decree is a minor at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, he may institute the suit or make the application with the same period after the minority has ceased.

The Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929 (Act No. XIX of 1929): In this Act, ‘child’ means a person who, if a male is under 21 years of age, and if a female, is under 18 years of age and ‘minor’ means a person of either sex who is under 18 years of age. Section 3 of the Act provides punishment of male adult below 21 years of age marrying a child. Section 4 of the Act provides punishment for male adult above 21 years of age marrying a child marriage. Section 6 prescribes punishment for parent or guardian concerned in a child marriage.

The Dissolution of Muslim Marriages Act, 1939 (Act No. VIII of 1939): Section 2 of the Act provides that a woman is entitled to obtain a decree for the dissolution of her marriage on the ground that she, having been given in marriage by her father or other guardian before she attained the age of 15 years, repudiated the marriage before attaining the age of 18 years, provided that the marriage has not been consummated. Nothing in this Act, affects any right which a married woman may have under Muslim Law to her dower or part thereof, on the dissolution of her marriage.

The Children Act, 1974 (Act No. XXXIX of 1974): This Act regulates the law relating to the custody, protection and treatment of children and trial and punishment of youthful offenders. In this Act the term ‘child’ has been defined as a person under the age of 16 years and also a person who is sent to certified institute or approved home or committed by a court to be custody of a relative or other fit person in spite of the fact that he has attained the age of 16 years during the period of his detention. The Act provides for establishment of Juvenile courts. The powers conferred on a juvenile court are sometimes exercisable by the High Court, the Court of Session and Courts of Magistrates of the First Class. The manner of trial of youthful offenders is specified in this Act.

Part V of the Children Act provides care and protection of destitute and neglected children. Under section 32 of the Act, a probation officer, not below the rank of Sub-Inspector of Police or any authorized person, may bring before a Juvenile Court a child who has no home, settled place of abode or visible means of subsistence, or no parent or guardian or who is found begging or is found doing any act under circumstances contrary to the well being of the child, or is found destitute or is under the care of parent or guardian who habitually neglects or cruelly ill-treats the child, or is found in the company of any reputed criminal or prostitute or is likely to fall into bad association or to enter upon a life of crime. On being presented before the Juvenile Court, the Court after taking such evidence as it thinks fit, may order him to be sent to a Certified Institution or approved house or to the care of a relative.

Part VI of the Children Act deals with some offences in respect of children such as penalties for cruelty to child, for employing children for begging, for being drunk while in charge of child, for giving intoxicating liquor or dangerous drugs are sold, for inciting child to bet or borrow, for taking on pledge or purchasing articles from child, for allowing child to be in brothel, for causing or encouraging seduction, for exploitation of child employees, for abetting escape of child or youthful offenders. Part VII of this Act deals with youthful offenders, Part VIII determines measures for detention etc. of children and youthful offenders, and Part IX provides for maintenances and treatment of committed children.

Laws enacted after being party to the UNCAT and UNCRC

The Nari O Shishu Nirjatan Daman Ain, 2000: Nari O Shishu Nirjatan Daman Ain, 2000 is the most used law relating to protection of children from sexual abuse and exploitations. CHAPTER-9

Strengths and Loopholes of National Laws and Policies

This Chapter in tabular form compares the provisions of UNCAT and UNCRC with the national policy and legal instruments. In two separate tables for these two conventions an attempt has been made to explore strength and loopholes of national policy and legal instruments in comparison with the provisions of the UNCAT and UNCRC. The first table relates to the UNCAT and the second one relates to UNCRC.

¹⁸ Explanations of Section 372:

I: When a female under the age of eighteen years is sold, let for hire, or otherwise disposed of to a prostitute or to any person who keeps or manages a brothel, the person so disposing of such female shall, until the contrary is proved, be presumed to have disposed of her with the intent that she shall be used for the purpose of prostitution.

II: For the purposes of this section "illicit intercourse" means sexual intercourse between person not united by marriage or by any union or tie which, though not amounting to a marriage, is recognized by the personal law or custom of the community to which they belong or, where they belong to different communities, of both such communities, as constituting between them a quasi-marital relation.

¹⁹ Explanation of Section 373:

I: Any prostitute or any person keeping or managing a brothel, who buys, hires or otherwise obtains possession of a female under the age of eighteen years shall, until the contrary is proved, be presumed to have obtained possession of such female with the intent that she shall be used for the purpose of prostitution.

II: 'Illicit intercourse' has the same meaning as in section 372.

²⁰ Explanations of Section 372:

I: When a female under the age of eighteen years is sold, let for hire, or otherwise disposed of to a prostitute or to any person who keeps or manages a brothel, the person so disposing of such female shall, until the contrary is proved, be presumed to have disposed of her with the intent that she shall be used for the purpose of prostitution.

II: For the purposes of this section "illicit intercourse" means sexual intercourse between person not united by marriage or by any union or tie which, though not amounting to a marriage, is recognized by the personal law or custom of the community to which they belong or, where they belong to different communities, of both such communities, as constituting between them a quasi-marital relation.

²¹ Explanation of Section 373:

I: Any prostitute or any person keeping or managing a brothel, who buys, hires or otherwise obtains possession of a female under the age of eighteen years shall, until the contrary is proved, be presumed to have obtained possession of such female with the intent that she shall be used for the purpose of prostitution.

II: 'Illicit intercourse' has the same meaning as in section 372.

CHAPTER- 10

IMPLEMENTATION FAILURES OF PRESENT LEGISLATIVE AND POLICY REGIME

Law at times becomes a farce or mockery with the people if it is not implemented properly or itself is not implementable at all. The implementation of law is quite a different issue for which specific attention and commitment is needed by the legislative, executive and judicial organ of the state. If the organs of the state are not committed enough to implement a law in its full sense the legislative organ will leave behind loopholes in the law which will provide perpetrators of crimes like torture and sexual exploitation of children enough scopes to remain untouched by the law enforcement agencies. Whenever the loopholes left by the legislature are not enough to provide escape to the perpetrators the executive organ will remain indifferent about enforcement of laws against the offenders. Loopholes of laws and procedures left by the legislature and latches left by the executive willfully or negligently are at times enough to save persons accused of the offences like torture and sexual abuse and exploitation of children. Inefficiency and lack of professional commitment as well as child rights sensitiveness of the judges or judicial officers at times results prosecution of the offences of torture and sexual abuse and exploitation of children frustrated. Though all the organs of the state, more or less, may be liable for failures in implementing provisions of UNCAT and UNCRC this study further examined failure in implementation of national legal and policy regime irrespective of their own compatibility with the standards of CAT and CRC.

Legislative Failures:

The first and foremost responsibility of making a law is entrusted with the legislature i.e. the national parliament of a country. Harmonizing national laws with the UNCAT and UNCRC standards is the primary responsibility of the legislature i.e. the Jatiya Sangsad of Bangladesh. It should be a concern for the parliament to make such enactments which can bring highest successes in its implantation within the quickest time. In reality the Parliament of Bangladesh is not so keen to have such concern while making legislations. The Constitution of Bangladesh, the supreme law of the land, itself was quite a modern and human rights sensitive law which made all national laws which are inconsistent with it and its fundamental rights provision void. So, making laws consistent with the fundamental rights provisions of the constitution had been a responsibility of the parliament of Bangladesh from its very emergence- much before having undertakings by ratification of UNCAT and UNCRC. When the parliament fails in doing these obviously it is an implementation failure of the legislature. If a nice enactment of the legislature is not implemented it may be the failure of the executive or the judiciary. A reputed women rights activist of the country informed one member of the study team of the present study that the recently repealed the Suppression of Immoral Traffic Act, 1933, which was applicable for Bangladesh, has never been used in Bangladesh. It needs a specific legislation based separate study to find out why implementation of a law fails. However, it is now-a-days noticeable that at time the legislature is doing incomplete legislation leaving its further development to the Government, which is causing unnecessary delay and implementation failure of the law. The parliament of Bangladesh has passed a law titled Paribarik Shahingshata (Protirodh o Shurokkha) Ain, commonly known as Domestic Violence Act in 2010. Comparing this law with the domestic violence law of India it is found that the content of both the laws are same. However, the DV Act of Bangladesh is an incomplete one, which awaits framing of Rules and forms by the Government. Without such Rules and forms this specific law can not be implemented at all. For this reason prosecutions initiated under this Act without such rules and forms faced various challenges- an Advocate practicing in the Supreme Court of Bangladesh informed the research team. In India such forms were annexed with the main Act as schedules.

Executive Failures

Failures of the Government and its different agencies are here described as executive failure of a State party of the UNCAT and the UNCRC. An excellent law can be completely unsuccessful to achieve its purpose if the Government is not inclined to implement it. The Manab Pachar Protirodh o Daman Ain, 2012 has been praised by many of our respondents but at the same time they expressed their anxiety about its implementation in the absence of Governments commitment to implement it by framing Rules, creating Fund and establishing a separate Court within the shortest period which has been stipulated in this Act. The Penal Code applicable for Bangladesh enacted in 1860 either directly and indirectly includes almost all the offences included in the recent legislations of Bangladesh such as the Nari o Shishu Nirjatan Daman Ain, 2000, the Manab Pachar Protirodh o Daman Ain, 2012 and the Pornography Niyontron Ain, 2012 and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 has also procedural and applicable court establishment guidelines for such offences. For implementation failures of these legal provisions the Government of Bangladesh is liable said a government prosecutor of Dhaka District seeking anonymity to the Study team. Failures of law enforcement agencies, investigation and prosecution services also fall under executive failures.

Judicial Failures

The failures of the judiciary in implementing a law by dispensation of justice has been discussed here as judicial failures. However, in recent years from 1995 to 2012 the parliament of Bangladesh has brought many legislative changes making the many previous legal provisions relating to sexual abuse and exploitation of children replaced with the new ones. For example the Nari o Shishu Nirjatan Daman Ain, 1995 was passed making many provision of the Penal Code, 1860 redundant, this Act of 1995 itself was repealed in 2000 and replaced with the Nari o Shishu Nirjatan Daman Ain, 2000. Many provisions of the Act of 2000 were further amended in 2003. The recent legislation of the parliament, the Manab Pachar Protirodh o Daman Ain, 2012 has repealed sections 5 and 6 of the Nari o Shishu Nirjatan Daman Ain, 2000. No case laws under the recent laws like Manab Pachar Protirodh o Daman Ain, 2012 and the Pornography Niyontron Ain, 2012 has been developed yet from which successes and failures of the judiciary can be examined. However, these two laws made many previous legal provisions redundant making the case laws developed on these legal provisions almost unnecessary. However, the research team of the study searched for relevant judgements of last 10 years for this study to explore the highest court's directions, observations and interpretation regarding existing laws and policies regarding torture, sexual abuse and exploitation of children. One of such recent case laws, which provides Bangladesh scope for harmonization and implementation of its obligations under UNCAT and UNCRC is the judgement of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Bangladesh in the case of Anika Ali vs Rezwanul Ahsan (reported in 17

BLC (AD)(2012) page 77) where Mr. Justice Md Imman Ali, the author judge of the judgement passed by the full Bench of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court observed-

“... Unless provisions of international instruments are contrary to our domestic laws, the beneficial provisions may profitably be referred to and implemented in appropriate cases. ”

Despite this huge advancement of the higher courts there are lots of judicial failures in implementation of national laws regarding torture, sexual abuse and exploitation of children. Delay in delivering judgements is one of the major failures of both higher and lower part of judiciary. It made almost all the recent legislations providing time-bound trial procedure useless. The judiciary has also failed to follow up the implementation of its judgements and order already passed.

Chapter 11

CHALLENGES IN HARMONIZATION

Political Challenges:

The emergence of Bangladesh was followed by framing of a very modern Constitution for the country. The Constitution of Bangladesh has incorporated in itself almost all the civil and political rights included in the UDHR and ICCPR which are also applicable for children and extends legal protection from torture and sexual abuse and protection. However, failure of Bangladesh in continuing constitutionalism because of unconstitutional intervention in the state power of Bangladesh and lack of minimum consensus among the political forces as well as lack mutual respect and trust interrupted human rights advancement of the country as well as continuity of legislative reforms. It has been still persistent in the politics of Bangladesh, which constitutes a big challenge in harmonizing national laws and policies with the standards set out in UNCAT and UNCRC.

Economic Challenges:

Article 10 of the OPSC considers root causes contributing to the vulnerability of children to the sale of children, child prostitution, child pornography and child sex tourism includes poverty and underdevelopment. Bangladesh is a least developed country. It can provide adequate standard of living to its citizens. A large number of children are compelled to be workers are under 18 years of age. They are the easy prey to sexual abuse and exploitation.

Social and Cultural Challenges:

Awareness raising and capacity building activities on child sexual abuse and sexual exploitation faces some social and cultural challenges in Bangladesh as general people treats sexual issues as taboo. The social and cultural environment of Bangladesh provides some kind of shelter to the perpetrators of sexual abuse and exploitation of children in Bangladesh. Sex is considered as a taboo and victims of sexual offences are accepted properly in the society. People at times consider the victims of such offences are also responsible for being victim because of their character. It compels victims and their family members suppress the whole issue which result in less complains and less prosecution. Once they become the victim of sex trafficking they dare not to seek remedy before the court of law in fear of losing social position. Though our domestic law provides provisions of camera trial in such cases, a three in one overburdened court could not maintain it. Some respondents cited an existing proverb regarding our legal system that a raped victim becomes raped twice in the court. The offences of domestic violence are quite accepted in our society. These socio-cultural challenges are very difficult to be addressed through legislative actions of the State.

Legal Challenges:

Since Bangladesh adheres to the principle of dualism in regard to the international laws like the provisions of UNCAT and UNCRC are not automatically incorporated in our legal system. It needs further national legislation. Many provisions of our Constitution relating to protection of children from exploitation are in its fundamental principle of state policy part. These provisions are not enforceable by the judiciary.

The legal system of Bangladesh also accommodates the respective personal laws of its population on personal affairs. Religion provides a separate code of lives of the people of Bangladesh. It controls marriage, sexual rights of man and women, maintenance, guardianship of children etc of the citizens of Bangladesh. It is a great challenge for Bangladesh to initiate harmonizing the personal law provisions with the UNCRC or UNCAT standards.

The adjudicative process in Bangladesh is adversarial in nature. Salient features of this system are that the parties, through their lawyers play a dominant role in the judicial process and the judge merely plays the role of an umpire to keep the parties within the bounds of the rules. The lawyers representing the parties in court present the facts of the case, produce evidence, call witnesses, examine and cross-examine them, argue with the counterparts, point to the laws applicable to the disputes and pursue decisions by the courts. A judge merely evaluates the facts in order to pass judgment on the basis of the appropriate law. In short, lawyers have, in this system, more active role than the judges. Even though there is lack of capacity building initiatives for lawyers.

Chapter 12

RECOMMENDATIONS

The Study Team makes the following recommendations in to harmonize the legal system of Bangladesh with the UNCAT and UNCRC standards:

- 1) Comprehensive Review of Existing Laws to Identify Scopes for Harmonization: The Committee on the Rights of the Child in 2009 in the Concluding Observation adopted on the combined third and fourth periodic report of Bangladesh recommended the Government several times to carry out a compressive review of existing laws of Bangladesh to harmonize the same with the CRC standards. In addition to the recommendations made by the Child Rights Committee the Study Team of the present study recommends the government of Bangladesh to identify, during the comprehensive review, the scopes for legal reform including making new laws in absence of any law to harmonize our legal system with the UNCAT and UNCRC standards.
- 2) Revision of Existing Laws: The study team recommends revision of the existing laws on sexual abuse and exploitation of Bangladesh by repealing some provisions of old laws which became redundant by the recent laws passed by the legislature. The government my consider codification of all laws relating to sexual offences.
- 3) Translation of Laws: Bangladesh is at present making all laws in Bangla. It is a laudable initiative to make legal service available to the common people. Almost all the laws have provision to make a government approved English translation of the law but the government is yet to make the translation. The government is recommended to translate all the recent laws and make it available to the legal community.
- 4) Determination the Age of ‘Child’: There are still some laws in Bangladesh e.g., the Nari O Shishu Nirjaton Daman Ain, 2000, the Children Act, 1974, Sromo

Ain, 2006 which have enough scope to define any human being of below 18 years as an adult. The laws having such ambiguities ought to be amended for harmonizing those with the provisions of UNCRC and UNCAT.

- 5) Enacting a new Law on Torture: The government of Bangladesh is recommended to enact a new law for providing all adequate protection from all kinds of torture and other cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment or punishment as per the Article 2 (1) and Article 4 of the Convention against Torture. The government may consider the private member bill presented in the Parliament on 10 September, 2009 by Mr. Saber Hossain Chowdhury, the Member of Parliament for the Constituency 182, Dhaka-9 as an example of legislation but specific attention should be given for child protection so that children get utmost protection from torture and treatment, which may be sexual nature.

- 6) Amendment of Criminal Procedure Code: Some provisions of Criminal Procedure Code like sections 54 and 167 provide some scope, when abused, for torturing a child in conflict with laws. These provisions would be amended as per the directions passed in *BLAST v. Bangladesh*²² and *Saifuzzaman v. State*²³ for harmonizing criminal provisions with those of UNCAT.

- 7) Amendment of Service Laws: The government is recommended to make laws of different government services including that of law enforcement agencies for harsh punishment when persons of these services get involved with offences of torture and sexual abuse and exploitation.

- 8) Separate Child Rights Commission: The government is recommended to establish a separate child rights commission or assigning one commissioner of the National Human Right Commission exclusively child rights functions.

²³ 56 DLR 324

- 9) Development of Institutional framework of rehabilitation Programme: The Except the Manab Pachar Protirodh O Daman Ain no other child rights laws provide vivid provisions for the rehabilitation of the victims of sexual offences. Moreover, Bangladesh has not sufficient institutional facilities to rehabilitate these victims. The government should develop its legal and institutional framework for effective physical and psychological recovery and social reintegration for the victims of sexual abuse and exploitation.
- 10) Development of relationship with NGOs: There are a good number of national and international NGOs working with child rights in Bangladesh. Of these, some have special schemes for the rehabilitation of sexually victimized children. The government is recommended to provide them scopes to work together with government by establishing relationship through adopting necessary legislative changes in concern laws.
- 11) Framing of Rules of recent laws: The Government is recommended to frame rules under newly enacted Domestic Violence Act and Human Trafficking Prevention and Suppression Act as these laws are not being implemented properly in absence of the rules making of which is vested to the Government.
- 12) Scope for filing a case directly before Manab Pachar Protirodh O Daman Tribunal: In the Nari o Shishu Nirjatan Daman Ain there was provision for filing case directly to the Tribunal established under this Act when Police do not record such case but in the Manab Pachar Protirodh o Daman Ain (Human Trafficking Prevention and Suppression Act) no such provision has been made. It may result in less filing of cases as Police of Bangladesh at times found unwilling to record cases to hide the real crime rate in their working area. Sometimes they refused to record cases being influenced by the offence side. So, provisions for direct case filing should be incorporated in Manab Pachar Protirodh O Daman Ain.

- 13) Laws on National Identity Card and Birth Certificate: The government is recommended to make the law on National Identity Card effective and to give full effect to the laws on birth registration.

- 14) Amendment of Evidence Laws accommodating Use of Modern Technology: The Evidence law of Bangladesh should be amended to give or increase evidential value of video and audio files which are essential to try cases of cyber and digital pornography.
